Juries Drawn Ketchikan Term

A grand and petit jury venire for the Ketchikan term of court was drawn yesterday at 2 o'clock at the court house. The term of court will start on September 1st, 1915.

The list is as follows:

Grand jurors from Wrangell—C. A. Blackington, H. Crabseth, A. S. Hansen, M. F. Hofstad, A. A. Hollenbeak, K. J. Johansen, J. H. Mantell, Al Osborne. From Petersburg—A. Glommer, Charles Green S. Johnson, P. Jorgensen, Fred Patten, Ed. Krause, C. E. Swanson. From Ketchikan—T. J. Alexander F. S. Burkhardt, N. Caspersen, John Furlong, J. Hawthorne, E. A. Heath, James Newman, and R. L. Petty.

The petit jurors were as follows:

From Wrangell—Fred Amundson, Jack Bender, J. C. Bjorge, R. E. Brown, Ralph Brown, E. Campbell, Oscar Carlson, Pat Loftus, L. C. Patenaude, Kent Talmadge, H. H. Thurston. From Ketchikan—W. Angel, F. H. Bold, E. Bong, T. Caspersen, L. Clark, Tom Clemmenson, Frank Capp, Bart Dailey, Frank Hart, F. C. Heath, W. R. Janggen, George Morrison and H. E. Peckham.

Fairbanks, Aug. 15:—Julius Miller and William O'Connor have been held to the federal grand jury on the charge of murdering Mrs. W. S. Rowe.

Indian Names In Alaska

Now that there is talk of holding an election to decide the name of the town at Anchorage, an explanation of some of the names in that section may be of interest.

The following definitions and explanations were given to the Dispatch by a man who has spent many years of his life in that section and who talks the native language fluently.

Matanuska is a pick up word, having no meaning in the Indian language, and no one seems to know from whence it originated. The native name for the Matanuska River is Chatonkna, meaning the swift running river. The syllable "na" in the native language means river and the rest of the word designates the special one as Chitina, which is the name for the Copper River, Chiti meaning where copper is found, and the rest of the word designating river.

The native name for the Knik is the Skidina, or the Tent River, deriving its name from the fact that the natives maintained a temporary camp at the mouth of this river.

Manana means the River of Travel, in other words it was a summer road or trail for the natives with their canoes, and in winter was their trail over the ice.—Dispatch.

A good show at the Photoshow tonight.

Winifred Breaks Crank Shaft

The river boat Winifred met with an accident last Sunday by breaking a crank shaft on one of the engines which forced them to return to town for repairs. The accident happened when the boat was on her way up the river near Scud River about 90 miles from Wrangell; She expects to get away on her delayed trip tomorrow.

Wm. G. Thomas Insurance Agent

Wm. G. Thomas, has accepted the local agency for several of the best known fire insurance companies and is now ready to write up your insurance for the coming year. Among his agencies are the Aetna, of Hartford, Conn., and the Northern Assurance Co., Ltd. of London England, and several others as well known. If your insurance has run out you had better look him up.

Capt. Robert E. Coontz, the new commander of the United States navy yard at Bremerton, was in Alaska in the 80's and early 90's, and was married while stationed at Sitka in command of the old gunboat Pinta.

Clippings From Our Exchanges

On July 27th the temperature at Seward rose to 90 degrees in the shade, and a 103 at Kenai lake.

A fire near Dawson destroyed $47,000 worth of cordwood in a single day. It belonged to the Guggenheims.

Julius Miller, a cook, is under arrest at Fairbanks, charged with having murdered Mrs. W. S. Rowe, of Olness.

Seven men were fined for speeding in Fairbanks recently, and the town feels proud of its metropolitan ways.

A copy of the first paper ever printed in Fairbanks the Fairbanks Gazette, has been dug up and will be presented to Delegate Wickersham.

The fire caused a loss of more than $350,000 to the town. Its not half the damage the rule and ruin gang have caused it.—Valdez Prospector.

About the only thing that the people of the First division can really expect to gain by the suit for the forest money is the ill will of Ex.

First Hunters On Way In

The first of the big game hunters for the season are in town on their way to the big game grounds on the head waters of the Stikine. There are six hunters here who will take the trip north tomorrow. Among them are: L. Taylor a lumberman of Portsmouth Ohio, Arthur W. Elting of Albany N. Y., W. S. Ferguson and B. N. Hanks of Athena, Ore., Richard Bullock of Fitchburg, Mass., and R. W. Klan of New York City. There are nine hunters all told this trip.

Terrible Waste Of Salmon

Serious waste of fish by salmon canneries in the vicinity of Cook inlet is reported by Aaron Erickson game warden, where, he says, he sailed for two days through schools of dead salmon. The packers, according to Erickson, have been leaving the traps closed until packed with fish, which spoil before they can be handled. The United States district attorney's office will be notified.

Many bridges on the Valdez Fairbanks road are being destroyed by forest fires.

Terrible Accident At Juneau

Harry Y. Anderson was taken to St. Ann Hospital at 10 o'clock this morning, having had his arm pulled off by getting it caught in the conveyor belt in the mill of the Alaska-Juneau Company. He was attended by Dr. Mahone.

After the accident, the man walked from the mill to the company bunkhouse at the foot of the hill and reported his condition. The machine of Dr. Mahone came along and he was taken in this to the hospital and then walked from there to the operating room. The arm was taken off at the left elbow. Dispatch.

Will Domesticate Wild Caribou

J. A. Singleton will try to domesticate wild caribou if he is granted permission by the federal authorities to do so. He is convinced that his plan will work and that a fine meat and milk animal can be secured. The experiment will be made at Tanana Crossing. Alaska Times.

Henry R. Calfee has been appointed postmaster at Iualina. Southeastern, deceased.

Fish Run Slack In Icy Straits

James T. Barron, Funter Bay canneryman, declares that the run of fish in icy straits has slackened considerably and that a heavy run at this time would be a boon to the canneries operating in his district. "The red salmon run this year has not been up to its previous mark; contrary to reports," he continued. "The red fish packed so far are about 8 percent of the pack."

Portland, Ore., Aug. 10.—S. Benson, millionaire lumberman and philanthropist of Portland, today announced that he would continue his campaign to have Portland's commission form charter changed to a managerial system, and if successful in that respect would open every possible avenue to secure George W. Goethals, who has recently resigned as governor of the canal zone, to become manager of this city. Mr. Benson recently declared before the city council that he could save the city $1,000 a day if allowed to manage the city on a business basis. His statement was challenged and his campaign has resulted.

The Sentinel now has a new Society Editor, and it goes without saying that we consider her the best in the world. The new editor arrived in the shape of a fine 6 1/2 pound girl born to the Editor and wife last Saturday afternoon. Mother and daughter doing fine.

Printing Point Does Not Bob Up and Down

In an L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter the point on the paper which is to receive the type impression is stationary at the instant the type hits. The carriage does not bob up and down when the shift is made to write capitals.

Why?

Because the type is shifted—not the carriage.

The only movement of the carriage is back and forth on its closely adjusted ball bearing runways—and this does not take place while the print is being made. There is no lifting of the carriage.

This is one reason why L. C. Smith & Bros. type-writing is free from blurs and every letter in the right

THE MAN UP TOWN SAYS

"Let's not be trying to stop something all the time; let's start something."

Cost Of The Great European War

The first year of the war has cost the belligerent governments about $16,500,000,000 in direct expenditures for military purposes. Experts agree fairly well on these figures. The Berlin Vorwaerts finds the total $16,676,130,000; the French economist, Edmond Thery, $17,400,000,000, and the statistician, William Michaels of Berlin, $15,240,000,000.

This is the expense of putting about 9,000,000 men into the field for the central powers and about 13,000,000 for the allies.

It does include, however, the far greater amount lost thru the destruction of towns and villages, the ravaging of the countryside, the wrecking of bridges and railroads and the wholesale sinking of ships, and the economic loss thru the diminution in productive industry, the killing of the strongest men in the community and the creation of a class of cripples and madmen.

The war is now costing about $45,000,000 a day, $2,000,000 an hour and $30,000 a minute. The cost is mounting steadily.

Dividing Alaska

The suit that is being brought by the people of the First division to prevent the other three divisions from having any of the forest reserve money appropriated to the territory by congress for road building, is proving quite conclusively that the territory of Alaska should be divided.

When we take into consideration the fact that Alaska covers an area equal to that of one-fifth of the United States proper, the impracticability of its being under a single local government is quite evident. Different sections of the territory have different interests, and the legislation that will help one section will hinder another.

If the First and Third divisions are combined into one Territory and the Fourth and Second into another, there will be more of a unity of interests. In the First and Third divisions the climatic conditions are much different than in the interior of Alaska. Here the snow falls to a moderate depth of seldom more than two feet, while on the southern and southern coast it either rains or is one of the reasons why road building and other improvements there must be different than here.

The people of the First division complained that Alaska as a whole is taxing the fishing interests of the First division for much of the territorial revenues. The newspapers of that division have been loud in their protests, just as if the territory is to be taxed in different divisions for local needs only.

Probably after the railroad is well under way it would not be hard to get congress to divide the territory, making Fairbanks the capital of the new one, and leaving Juneau and Seward to fight it out in regard to which should be the capital of the other territory.

If a new territory is to be formed, it has been suggested that it be called Seward, in honor of the man responsible for its purchase from Russia nearly half a century ago.—Fairbanks Citizen.

The state of affairs between the United States and Mexico seems to be drawing to a close.

The cache of the Alaskan railroad engineering commission at Seward, needs replenishing. C. E. Dole, purchasing agent, is asking for bids on a list of groceries, from dehydrated eggs to Roquefort cheese. Here are some of the things that railroad employees will need between August 15 and the end of the fall season: Fifty five and one-half tons of flour, twenty five tons of sugar, twenty tons of butter, thirteen tons of bean, seven and one-half tons of coffee, seven and one-half tons of bacon, three tons of salt, one-half ton of cracks, 2,500 cases canned goods, 1,000 bottles of extracts, 1,500 cases of condensed cream, 25,000 bars of soap, ten cases of grape juice, five barrel of ginger ale, twenty pounds of Roquefort cheese, ten pounds of paprika, one pound of thyme.

According to a Tacoma paper a fox farmer at Dyea, Alaska, who started with one pair of animals eighteen months ago, could exchange his present holdings for 75,000 in ready John Davis.

O. A. Larsen, of Shakan, came in on the Dan yesterday.

The Co-operative Fishing Company shipped a car load of mild cured salmon south on the Jefferson. Manager McGehee reports that the stormy weather of the past week has caused the fish run to slack off but that the fishermen are doing good.

P. J. Gorman, the well known cannery man, came in on the Dan yesterday. He reports a good catch of fish at Shakan, and has a good bear story to tell that he has seen ten in the last week and killed four of them.

T. B. Welpton, special agent of the Northern Assurance Co., Ltd., of London, England, one of the best known fire insurance companies in the world, was a Wrangell visitor the first of the week, and while here he appointed Wm. G. Thomas as local agent for that company.

New Serial Coming To Photoshow

Manager J. R. Bender of the Photoshow is advertising the coming of the great serial "The Tray O Hearts". The picture is one of the greatest ever put in moving pictures and as many people here have read the story it promises to be a good drawing card.

The following is an interview with Mr. J. E. Chilberg, published in the Seattle Times of the 9th, and is one of the best boosts that could be given for the new property at Devil's Elbow on the Stikine. When a man with Mr. Chilberg's reputation gives out a story it can be taken as facts.—Ed.

Tremendous Body Of Ore Found On River In British Columbia

If Discovery on Stikine Proves as Big as it Looks, There Never Has Been Anything to Equal It, According to J. E. Chilberg.

What is believed by J. E. Chilberg, prominent banker of Seattle, to be the biggest zone of lead, silver, zinc and copper ore ever found has been discovered on the Stikine River, forty miles below Telegraph Creek in Northern British Columbia.

Mr. Chilberg, who has just returned from the find, says the contract is exposed for miles and may reach from British Columbia to Lynn Canal, Alaska.

"If this thing is as big as it looks and as rich as the assays indicate," said Chilberg, "there never has been a mineral discovery equaling it. It is the biggest thing in the world."

The remarkable thing about the discovery is that thousands of miners and prospectors passed within a few hundred yards of it, when traversing the Stikine River.

In the days of the Cassiar stampede in the early 80's and again when the Klondike was discovered thousands of weary gold hunters hauled their sleds and poled their boats along this turbulent stream, but their mecca was Telegraph Creek, at the head of the river, the starting out point for the Cassiar and for Teslin Lake at the head of Teslin River, one of the tributaries of the Yukon.

"I am not surprised that it was not found before," said Chilberg. "The surprise to me is that it ever was found without a balloon."

"The cliffs on the banks of the river on both sides are so steep that a man needs many of the qualities of a mountain goat to reach the ore bodies, and in most places these are covered with moss and overburden. Far above where our men are working can be seen protruding ledges. We climbed to some of them and brought out samples of the ore."

"How much there is of it nobody can say. There is ore all around where we have opened it. In driving the tunnel to see what it looked like, our crew took out about $15,000 worth. The contract of granite and limestone can be traced for miles. I have been told it runs as far as Lynn Canal. The ore carries about 25 per cent of zinc, with gold and silver values running all the way from $3 and $4 to $75 and $80 to the ton. Most of our assays run about $190 for the entire content."

The discovery was made about a year ago by Thomas Dixon and his two partners, who, it is said, were led to the find by an Indian. Jerry Galvin, a Nome prospector, who was in the Stikine region, made an investigation and took an option. He couldn't believe what he saw was true, but brought some of the samples to Seattle. Chilberg, J. E. Lindeberg and Sam Silverman financed the project, putting up enough money to drive a tunnel and to scrape off the moss at a number of different places. When eleven men had dug around for a few weeks the thing grew even bigger than it had appeared and Chilberg went to make a personal examination of it.

Fifty thousand dollars will be expended in getting the property ready for active operation. An air compressor, aerial tram, diamond drill and other equipment will be installed and the first cargo of ore will be sent out next spring.

"Working by hand is extremely slow and expensive," said Chilberg "and we will get in some machinery right away. Silverman is in charge of the property. He will be here next week to purchase the equipment necessary."

Chilberg strongly deprecates a stampede to the new district, because of the inaccessibility of the country.

"People going in there are bound to have a tough time of it," he said, "Not only are the mountains steep and rugged, but the ground is covered with moss and it is difficult to locate the veins that run through the formation."
